

Bridging the gap between Quality Engineering and leadership

Furthermore, proving Quality Engineering worth to the top management continues to pose a major challenge. The message that testing and quality are crucial to business is still not entirely passed to the boardroom after years of trying. There exists a disconnection between strategic objectives of senior management and practical aspects of Quality Engineering. This gap is something we continue to work on, however, bridging this gap requires more effort.

The future of Quality Engineering in China Download the white paper

or Scan the QR code

